EDITORIAL.

This is Thanksgiving Week. The President of the United States and the Governor of Nebraska have called us to set one day apart as a day of Thanksgiving. Each of us has much to be thankful for. North Platte and Lincoln County as a whole has much to be thankful for. Some of us are having financial difficulties but we have an abundance of healthful climate, peace, an orderly government, an opportunity to make good and friends. And from a financial standpoint this community is better off than most places we know. When the factories close it only affects us indirectly. We have had good crops as a whole. The Union Pacific payroll and the beefs, and the hogs and the butter and eggs are all pouring wealth into the community. This is Thanksgiving and we have much to be thankful for.

SCRAPPLE.
A Column of Nonsense.

The other day when we were going over to The Shoe Market to buy a new pair of slippers for our wife, a man stepped up and told us that he had just read the latest reports which gave 375,698 as the number of handbags left in the election booth in the United States last election day and more coming in every day. He said he couldn't see why the ladies left their handbags in the election booths and asked us if we knew. We said we didn't and so we went over to see Ed Davis about it. Ed had his coat off and was standing out on the sidewalk looking for someone. We said hello and he said hello and smiled so we went in with him. Pretty soon we told him what we had heard and he said "My! My! That's a big number" and we said yet it was. A man who came here from Missouri was in the store and he said he didn't believe it. We told him we were only repeating what we had heard and that he couldn't blame us. Ed said he didn't know the ladies had so many handbags and Missouri said they give them back and forth for Christmas so much that they don't know how many they have themselves. We said we would think they would hold onto them if they were gifts and not be leaving them around in election booths and Ed said he left his rubbers in an election booth one time when it was rainy and he never found them again. We said we left our fountain pen in an election booth once and when we came back in a day or two we found that they had not only taken the pen but they had taken the booth and all. Ed said that wasn't honest and for his part he would never take anything from an election booth. Missouri said he guessed that is what the women thought but neither Ed nor we saw the point just then. Ed said he thought it was a lot nicer for the ladies to leave their handbags in the election booths for the election officers to take home to their wives because before the women voted all they ever found in the election booths were cigar snipes and tobacco cuds. Missouri said they were probably shabby handbags that could not be given away this Christmas and we said that's right and just then the phone rang and Ed went to answer it but he hadn't said anything yet when we left fifteen minutes later but "Yes ma'am" several times. And now we know.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben James left this morning for Oshkosh to spend two weeks.
